

Angels in the Outfield

One child at a time...

Donna Harlan, Friends of Angels Liason

donna@theangelsintheoutfield.org

Donna first learned of The Angels In The Outfield when her longtime friend, Karla, invited her and her husband Rich to attend the Angels annual auction fundraiser. After attending the auction a second time, she was invited to volunteer on the auction committee, again by Karla, and jumped in with both feet to participate. She was asked to help out at the first Holiday Store and knew that being part of Angels would be something she would always say yes to when asked.

Donna and her sisters were raised by their mom, with loving support from Donna's grandparents, along with aunts and uncles who provided guidance and childhood experiences for them her mom couldn't have provided easily on her own. She is grateful she is able to be part of an organization that can show children there are always people who care.

Donna and Rich live in Oregon City where they raised their two sons. She works at Lake Oswego Public Library as the Library Administrative Assistant.

Donna joined the Angels board in 2019.
